> BOHEMIANS' HIGH JINKS. Great Day at Annual Outing on Lake

Old King Cole may have been a merry old soul and as happy as a king may be, but he never had a better time in all his happy life than the bilssful aggregation that climbed on the 9.10 car out of Danlelson Tuesday morning en route to Phillips' grove. Alexander's lake for the annual field day outing of the Bohemian club. A half column might be used here in telling about the parade and band and half column might be used here in telling about the parade and band and regalla, etc., etc., that were seen just before the car came along by those who make a practice of being down town so early in the morning, but—
Every member of the organization, excepting a very few who because of absolutely irremovable circumstances simply couldn't arrange to be present, answered to the call of their names in the roll of those who were to eat clams; the stay at homes wept, or at least they said they would.

His Exalted Highness Edward S. Carpenter, special representative of all Carpenter, special representative of all Bohemia, was the brilliantly uniform-ed leader of the procession that took a tour around Main street before start-

There was no need of a tonic for that aggregation. No, not this season. They were there to have a good feed and a good time and they had both. And the phylcians, dentists, lawyers and undertakers present said it was all right. So it was.

After a cigar and a talk and a little music by the hand there was another.

FREDERICK LAWTON DEAD.

Expires Tuesday Morning, Following

Attack of Heart Trouble.

Brooklyn people were shocked Tuesday morning when the sudden death of Frederick Lawton, age 22, son of C. J. Lawton, occurred. This young man had been ill only since Saturday, and his condition was not regarded as second rious. His illness started in with rheumatism. Tuesday morning at three o'clock he suffered an attack of heart disease and another one at seven. The second one proved fatal. Mr. Lawton was employed by his father and was well known in the territory surrounding Putnam. He leaves his wife and a child only a few weeks old, his father and mother, a brother, Carroll, and a sister, Katherine.
